Jean Nouvel

Fumel, 1945

Jean Nouvel was born in Fumel in the south of France. He opened his first office in 1970 where he continues to operate today. Since then, a relentless work ethic has led him to achieve numerous awards, most recently the Pritzker Prize in 2008.

In 1976, his first striking achievement, Saint-André-les-Vergers, is seen as the exemplification of what used to be called "critical architecture". The collaboration with Olivari started in 2005.
